

Successful Online Teaching and Learning

University of Oklahoma Faculty and Staff: You are invited to a FREE Seminar and Luncheon!

11:00 a.m. Designing for Success in Online Teaching and Learning
– L. Ragan, PSU

12:15 p.m. Lunch provided by the College of Liberal Studies and College of Continuing Education

Desire to Learn

– Bob Dougherty, CLS

Successful Online Teaching and Development

– Linda Wallace, Botany/Microbiology

1:15 p.m. Elements of Success and Managing Faculty Workload
– L. Ragan, PSU

3:00 p.m. The OU Library as Key to Online Learning
– Pat Weaver-Meyers,
OU Library

Thursday April 14, 2005

11:00 a.m. - 3:45 p.m.

Forum Building – OCCE – 1704 Asp

Featuring

Dr. Lawrence C. Ragan

Director, Instructional Design and Development

World Campus

Pennsylvania State University

Objectives:

- Participants will review existing strategies for addressing development needs of faculty involved in online learning.
- Participants will formulate new approaches to serving the development needs of faculty in the areas of pedagogical and technical support, compensation, and student support.

To register for lunch, please call 325-1061
by April 11th, 5:00 p.m.

This hands-on workshop will explore a range of issues related to the support and development of faculty involved in online education, whether completely online or in combination with other delivery methods. Faculty are the most valuable asset to a successful online learning program. Understanding their needs and developing the appropriate levels of service is a critical link to a satisfied online faculty. This session will explore specific strategies for addressing design and development needs as well as review compensation models, support services, technical support, and workload management strategies.

College of Liberal Studies
The University of Oklahoma
405/325-1061