

Call for Manuscripts

Special Issue of The Howard Journal of Communications, sponsored by the Minorities and Communication Division of the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication.

Deadline: Monday, January 6, 2014

The Howard Journal of Communications invites manuscripts for a special issue addressing minorities and the media. The term “minorities” has been defined to include Latinos, African Americans, Asian Americans, and Native Americans. Research addressing other under-represented populations of color and the media will also be considered.

Manuscripts should aim to advance theoretical or conceptual understanding of minorities and the media. Topics on this focus previously addressed in the Howard Journal include:

- *Music videos
- *Health communication and healthcare disparities
- *Internet messages
- *Representation in news media and newsrooms
- *Minority press history and coverage
- *Racial Stereotypes in sports and reality TV
- *Racial perceptions

Submissions from a broad range of methodologies are encouraged including, but not limited to, quantitative, ethnography, critical and cultural approaches, and history. Dr. Kenneth Campbell, University of South Carolina, will be the guest editor of the issue, which will include five or six peer-reviewed manuscripts. The manuscripts should conform to APA style and must be submitted through the ScholarOne system website at the following address: <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.uhjc>. The journal’s complete instructions for authors are available at www.tandfonline.com/UHJC.
